EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

THE TRUE MEANING OF FRIENDSHIP: 'Show me your friends and I'll show you your future.' This quote holds profound meaning today, as true friendships seem to vanish into the background of fast-paced lives and self-interest. The friendship between Krishna and Sudama depicts a beautiful example of true friendship, deep-rooted in mutual respect, love and loyalty that surpassed wealth and social status. Their bond was not built on compassion and understanding, traits not often seen in modern relationships.

Many of us feel deceived by those whom we once called friends. It is common to hear, 'We were best friends a long time ago and now we don't talk,' or 'My friend used me for personal gain.' The worst of all is, 'I was betrayed by someone I trusted deeply.' These experiences make us question the authenticity of our friendships. When someone uses or deceives us, that association lacks the essence of true friendship. These friendships are shallow, lacking selfless care or genuine connection. My friend once shared how she helped a friend secure a job, only to be met with indifference and ungratefulness later. This makes us wonder whether we should expect gratitude in friendship. Ideally, friendship is about giving without expecting. But at its core, even unconditional love deserves to be acknowledged with kindness.

True friendship is cultivated over time. Choosing the right person as a friend requires considering several aspects. We need to learn to differentiate between friends and acquaintances. Just because someone is often present in our everyday life does not mean they are emotionally invested in our well-being. A true friend uplifts us when life gets difficult, someone who brings positive energy rather than draining us with negativity. They walk beside us through our difficult times, without exploiting us emotionally, morally or financially. Boundaries, time, distance or differences cannot stop a true friendship. If we find such a person, we should keep them close and most importantly, we should strive to possess the same qualities we expect from them.

Empathy, equanimity, mutual respect, honesty, selflessness and support in adversity are the true essence of friendship. The bond between Krishna and Sudama reminds us of the magic that lies in pure selflessness. In a world of fleeting connections, such friendships are rare treasures worth cherishing for a lifetime. — Anitha Ramachander in Deccan Herald

World's first robot fighting competition

Beijing: Unitree, a robotics company based in China's Zhejiang Province, held a unique kickboxing competition to show the capabilities of its G1 robot. Standing only 130 cm tall and weighing 35 kilograms, the G1 is a small robot capable of smooth, fluid movements, and displaying impressive balance and recovery ability.

Four G1 robots went head-to-head inside a ring under the watchful eye of a human referee who made sure they fought by the rules and broke them apart when they clinched for too long. The robots' movements were coordinated via remote control and voice commands by human controllers at ringside. After winning their first two matches, two G1 robots confronted each in the final. The winner was a Unitree robot controlled by Chinese tech influencer Lu Xin.

Electric toothbrush helps wife catch cheating hubby

London: British private investigator Paul Jones, with over a decade of experience, recently recounted one of his most unusual cases. Catching a cheating partner in the act is rare, but rarer still is catching them cheating with the help of an electric toothbrush.

One of Jones' clients, a married mother-of-two who was trying to improve her children's brushing habits by monitoring their electronic toothbrush use via a smartphone app, noticed that the brush was being used at strange times of the day when her kids were supposed to be at school and her husband at work.

The electric toothbrush was being used on Friday mornings, a time when her husband was supposed to be at work. In reality, her spouse hadn't been to work on Friday morning in months. Instead, he had been having an affair with a colleague right in the family home, knowing no one would be there.

Remove seized vehicles parked on footpath

Sir,

I am writing to bring to your attention a follow-up issue regarding the footpath near Devaraja Traffic Police Station.

My letter about footpath encroachment by the Devaraja Traffic Police Station was published in Star of Mysore on Jan. 3, 2025. Following the publication, Police officials took prompt action and removed the barricades from the footpath, which was well appreciated by the public.

However, I regret to inform you that the same footpath is now being used to park seized vehicles. This has once again obstructed pedestrian movement and is causing inconvenience to the public.

I request the Police authorities to take immediate steps to clear the footpath and ensure it remains accessible for public use.

'3 million die of heart attacks, strokes every year in India'

Reputed cardiologist and Bangalore Rural MP Dr. C.N. Manjunath highlights a troubling trend

Mysuru, May 29 (SBD&BCT)- "Heart attacks and brain strokes have become the leading killers in India, claiming nearly 3 million lives every year," rued Dr. C.N. Manjunath, Bangalore Rural MP and former Director of the Jayadeva Institute of Cardiology.

He was speaking at the inauguration of S.M. Krishna Memorial Neuro Zone near Doctors' Corner in Gokulam III Stage, Mysuru, last evening.

Dr. Manjunath expressed deep concern over the alarming rise in lifestyle diseases, stressing that both heart attacks and strokes share common causes — smoking, alcohol, stress, diabetes, poor diet and sedentary habits. "The key to saving lives lies in immediate intervention within the golden hour — the first one to two hours after the incident," he stated.

Highlighting a troubling trend, he noted that it is no longer the elderly but increasingly the young, aged between 25 and 40, who are being rushed to hospitals for heart-related emergencies. "This isn't just a shift in times, but a reflection of modern lifestyle stress, rising expectations and constant pressure," he added.

Stress: The new smoking

Dr. Manjunath labelled stress as the "new smoking," stating that it silently fuels a wide range of health disorders. "Whether in student life, careers or family matters, stress has become omnipresent. People today lack the patience to wait — they want instant results," he remarked.

He cited how, unlike previous generations who built homes after retirement, young professionals now invest heavily in real estate during their probation.

The doctor emphasised control over what he called the "Six S" factors: Sugar, Stress, Salt, Spirit (alcohol), Smoking and Sedentary lifestyle.

Medicine beyond medicine

Dr. Manjunath also stressed the importance of holistic health, advocating for natural remedies such as exercise, sunlight, restful sleep, fasting and a plant-based diet. "Gratitude, family bonding, meaningful friendships, yoga, and laughter are powerful tools in combating illness," he said.

Legacy of S.M. Krishna

Dr. Manjunath lauded the late Chief Minister S.M. Krishna as a model of dignity and restraint in public life. "He was a statesman known for disciplined speech and measured conduct," he said.

The newly inaugurated Neuro Zone Centre, named in Krishna's honour, will offer cutting-edge neurological services. The facility was established by Dr. Shushrutha Gowda, a US-trained neurosurgeon who chose to return and serve in India. His wife, Dhanya Shushrutha, also attended the event.

Despite his responsibilities as an MP, Dr. Manjunath affirmed that he continues to practice cardiology every Monday and Wednesday. "No matter my political role, I will never abandon my profession," he said.

Prema Krishna, wife of late S.M. Krishna, formally opened the Neuro Zone facility.

Other dignitaries included Chamundeshwari MLA G.T. Devegowda, Public TV Chairman H.R. Ranganath and several other guests.

The event concluded with the felicitation of retired Colonel Ravi and Nayak Ravi, veterans of the Kargil War, in recognition of their valiant service to the nation.

Dr. C.N. Manjunath, Bangalore Rural MP and former Director of Jayadeva Institute of Cardiology, seen inaugurating 'S.M. Krishna Memorial Neuro Zone' in Gokulam, Mysuru, last evening along with Prema Krishna, wife of S.M. Krishna, MLA G.T. Devegowda and H.R. Ranganath, Chairman of Public TV as Dr. Shushrutha Gowda (extreme left), Managing Director, Neuro Zone, Dhanya Shushrutha (partly seen) and others look on.

Legacy of service lives on

Dr. Vishnumurthy honoured Shanthaveri Gopalagowda by establishing a hospital in his name. Now, Dr. Shushrutha carries forward that legacy by naming this facility after S.M. Krishna, his father's (Vishnumurthy) close associate. Driven by a deep sense of duty, Dr. Shushrutha is already making a mark. I believe his commitment will continue to benefit society."

— G.T. Devegowda, MLA

Service beyond politics

Politicians may not always inspire journalists, but I shared a bond of trust with S.M. Krishna and learned much from him. Neurology and cancer care are expensive in India. While politicians face criticism, many quietly serve the public. Naming this facility after a respected leader is a fitting tribute, and with Shushrutha's sincerity, I believe it will offer exceptional care."

— H.R. Ranganath, Chairman, Public TV

Medicine first, always

Thanks to Dr. Vishnumurthy and Rekha, Shanthaveri Gopalagowda Hospital remains a trusted name. Dr. Shushrutha, already running a Neuro Zone Unit in Nazarbad, has now launched another facility. He is an outstanding doctor. Though drawn into politics, I hope he remains rooted in medicine while serving the public in his own way."

— Prema Krishna, wife of late S.M. Krishna

DECODING MYTHOLOGY

Dr. Devdutt Pattanaik - Author, Speaker, Illustrator, Mythologist

Buddhism as a Prosperity Gospel

Stories of merchants are notably absent in Brahmin scriptures but are widespread in Buddhist scriptures. Shortly after the Buddha attained Nirvana, he was met by two merchants who fed him but admitted they could not practise the rigorous meditation techniques. The Buddha, therefore, advised them to spread the word of the dhamma by building stupas containing his relics. He even gave them a lock of his hair and demonstrated the design of the stupa by overturning a bowl on to a folded cloth.

Thus began the tradition of building stupas and funding Buddhist activities, earning merchants good karma and, consequently, good fortune, effectively transforming Buddhism into a form of prosperity gospel. This aspect of Buddhism is rarely highlighted. This is because the Europeans saw in Buddha an anti-ritualist anti-Hindu rational thinker in the 19th century. Then Buddhism was seen as a social justice by Dalit politicians, and its new form was named Navayana Buddhism. The long mercantile history of Buddhism was eclipsed, especially its role in promoting entrepreneurship, trade and banking.

Many merchants supported Buddhism, as evidenced in the storytelling traditions. For instance, there is the story of Kumbhaka Gosha. During an epidemic, a young merchant's family was wiped out. The surviving son was told the secret location of a hidden treasure but was advised to flee and return only after 12 years. When the boy returned as a young man, he realised that retrieving the treasure would likely lead to his arrest by the authorities. Instead, he took a job as a town crier. His voice impressed King Bimbisara, who suspected that the boy came from an aristocratic background.

The king sent a maid to uncover the truth. Upon learning the boy's story, the king was impressed by his intelligence and made him part of the royal household.

It is well-known that the Buddha had two male disciples and two female disciples, but he also had a male and a female merchant who funded his earliest institutions. The Jetavana, where the Buddha delivered his sermons, was purchased by a generous merchant named Anathapindika, who continued to support the Buddhist establishment even after falling into poverty. His devotion impressed the gods, who ensured that all those who owed him repaid their loans, thereby restoring Anathapindika's fortunes.

Vishakha, a wealthy Buddhist woman, married into a Jain household but impressed her father-in-law with her intelligence, ultimately leading him to convert to Buddhism. On one occasion, she remarked that he was eating stale food, which angered him until she explained that the "stale food" referred to the old karma that had brought him wealth. She told him that to generate new karma, he needed to support the Buddhist establishment.

Much later, in the Milinda Panha, we hear of the courtesan Bindumati, who treated all her customers equally, regardless of their social status, so long as they paid her fee. This impartial treatment of customers was said to be the reason for her fortune. Courtesans, being independent women who did not gain status in society because they refused to take husbands, often patronised Buddhism by feeding monks. For example, the courtesan Amrapali purchased a mango orchard for the Buddha.

This explains why Buddhist sites are typically found along trading routes across India, highlighting the deep connection between Buddhism and the merchant community. Bharhut and Sanchi, the earliest Buddhist stupas, were built along trade routes from Pataliputra towards Narmada and Gujarat. Ajanta, Ellora, Kanheri and Bhaja caves mark the trade routes connecting the Godavari Basin to the western seaport of Supara near modern Mumbai. Nagarjunakonda marks the Buddhist part of Andhra while Kanaganahalli is located in the Buddhist trade centres of Karnataka. Gandhara Buddhist art near Peshawar marks the Buddhis trade routes that connected to Kabul and beyond. Mathura on the banks of Yamuna, a major trading centre, was also famous for the earliest Buddha images, which are nearly 2,000 years' old. Trading centres along the Mahanadi river of Odisha and sites like Sirpur and Ratnagiri were all trading centres as well as Buddhist sites.

In Mahayana Buddhism, which developed around 500 AD, we find images of Avalokiteshwara being invoked by traders and sailors to protect them from maritime disasters, wild animals, accidents and thieves. These are found at eastern and western coastal sites of India, Sri Lanka and Java.

Ashokan edicts are all found on Buddhist trade routes. For the income of the royal Mauryan state came from toll tax. The Ashokan wheel was not simply Buddha's dharma-chakra, it was also the wheel of caravans, and a symbol of highways radiating in and out of the royal market. In Buddhist lore, Buddha was described as the great caravan leader and guardian. So it is as much an economic reason that brought Ashoka close to Buddhism as it was spiritual reasons.

Cong., BJP unite in condemning remarks; 'Love will never apologise,' clarifies actor

Bengaluru / Chennai, May 29 (Agencies)- Actor-turned-politician Kamal Haasan has stirred controversy with his recent statement that the Kannada language "was born out of Tamil." The remark, made during a public event in Chennai ahead of the release of his film 'Thug Life', has drawn sharp criticism from political leaders and pro-Kannada groups in Karnataka.

Kamal Haasan

Haasan commented while addressing a gathering that included Kannada actor Shivarajkumar. "This is my family in that place. That's why he (Shivarajkumar) has come here. That's why I began my speech by saying, life, family and Tamil. Your language [Kannada] was born out of Tamil, so you too are included," Haasan said.

His statement — seen as undermining Kannada's distinct linguistic heritage — has triggered widespread outrage.

State BJP President B.Y. Vijayendra called Haasan's remarks "uncultured" and accused him of insulting Kannada and its speakers. The Congress and several pro-Kannada organisations have echoed similar sentiments, with some groups even calling for a boycott of Thug Life in Karnataka.

Actor refuses to apologise

Amid the backlash, Haasan issued a clarification yesterday, stating that his words had been misinterpreted. "This is not an answer, it's an explanation. What I said was out of love. Many historians have taught me about the history of languages. I didn't mean to hurt anyone," he said.

Haasan also praised Tamil Nadu's inclusive nature, citing its political diversity: "This is a State where a Menon, a Reddy, a Tamil, and even a Kannadiga Iyengar have served as CM."

Recalling past support from Karnataka, Haasan referred to a time when he faced political pressure in Tamil Nadu. "When there was trouble from a Chief Minister from Karnataka (Jayalalithaa), it was Kannadigas who told me, 'Come here, we'll give you a house.' The people of Karnataka will take care of me and Thug Life," he said.

"Love will never apologise," the actor added.

Poor Kamal Haasan unaware of Kannada's history: Siddaramaiah

Film Chamber to discuss blocking Thug Life in Karnataka

Bengaluru, May 29 (Agencies)- Chief Minister Siddaramaiah on Wednesday dismissed Tamil actor-politician Kamal Haasan's controversial claim that "Kannada was born out of Tamil," saying the actor lacks knowledge of Kannada's deep-rooted heritage.

"Kannada has a long-standing history. Poor Kamal Haasan, he is unaware of it," Chief Minister Siddaramaiah said

Haasan, who made the statement at a Chennai event attended by Kannada actor Shivarajkumar, is now facing mounting criticism from politicians, pro-Kannada groups, and members of the public across Karnataka.

Pro-Kannada outfit Karnataka Rakshana Vedike (KRV) filed a Police complaint against Haasan at R.M. Nagar Police Station in Bengaluru, accusing him of making "unlawful" and "insensitive" remarks that hurt the sentiments of Kannadigas. .

Minister issues warning

The controversy has also prompted a stern warning from the Karnataka Government. Kannada and Culture Minister Shivaraj Thangadagi said, "Kamal Haasan should apologise. Otherwise, we will ask the Karnataka Film Chamber of Commerce to ban him and his films in the State." Haasan's upcoming film Thug Life, directed by Mani Ratnam, is scheduled for release early next month.

Several pro-Kannada groups have threatened to block its screening across Karnataka unless Kamal Haasan tenders an unconditional apology.

SC halts Rs. 3,400 crore TDR payout to Wadiyar heirs

Transferable Development Rights (TDR) certificates to remain deposited with the Court registry

If already released, TDR certificates are barred from being used or transferred to third parties. The order comes in response to an application filed by Karnataka Government seeking a review of Supreme Court's earlier May 22 direction, which was issued while hearing a batch of contempt petitions. That order had instructed the Government to release the TDR certificates to the heirs of the erstwhile Mysore Royal Family.

The Court has scheduled the review petition for hearing during the week commencing July 21, 2025. It also stated that if the review petition is dismissed, the interim stay would continue for four weeks thereafter or until the matter is heard by a three-Judge Bench — whichever is later. The main civil appeal in the case has been listed for Aug.18, 2025.

Senior advocate Kapil Sibal, representing the Karnataka Government, led the arguments for modifying the May 22 order. He was supported by Advocate General K. Shashi Kiran Shetty and Additional Advocate General Nishanth Patil.

Appearing for the Royal Family, senior advocates A.K. Ganguli and Gopal Sankaranarayanan opposed State's plea. Ganguli noted that similar arguments had been rejected multiple times by different Benches. "There has to be some law," he said, referring to the State's repeated attempts at seeking modifications.

As an interim safeguard, the Apex Court clarified that all TDR certificates issued following the May 22 contempt ruling must remain with the registry until further orders. To avoid further legal complications, the Court also kept in abeyance the consequential effects of previous orders issued on Dec. 10, 2014; May 17, 2022; March 19, 2024; and May 22, 2025.

While dictating the order, Justice Surya Kant observed that there might have been a "bonafide error" in the original 2014 ruling due to inadequate legal assistance at the time.

The roots of the dispute trace back to 1996 when Karnataka Government enacted Bangalore Palace (Acquisition and Transfer) Act to take over Palace Grounds. Though Karnataka High Court upheld the Act, the Royal Family appealed to the Supreme Court in 1997, and the matter has remained pending ever since.

Folk scholar and theatre artiste U.S. Ramanna felicitated

Folk scholar and theatre artiste U.S. Ramanna, who turned 75 recently, and his wife Dr. Y.C. Bhanumati, were felicitated at a programme organised by Kadamba Rangavedike, Mysuru, at Sri Kalanikethana School of Art in Vijayanagar, Mysuru. They are seen with folk scholar Dr. D.K. Rajendra, senior theatre person Prof. H.S. Umesh, senior journalist Amshi Prasannakumar, Rajashekar Kadamba of Kadamba Rangavedike, Sri Kalanikethana School of Art Principal K.C. Mahadevashetty, Nagendra Kumar and Ashwath Kadamba. On the occasion, a photo exhibition of the roles essayed by actor Ramanna in theatre was organised and Ramanna's disciples Kartik Upamanyu and Vishal presented Kamsale.

'Raman - Light, Thunder, Sound' throws light on Sir C.V. Raman's life

The play 'Raman - Light, Thunder, Sound' on the life of Sir C.V. Raman, written by Shashidhara Dongre, was directed by H.S. Umesh and premiered at Kiru Rangamandira in Mysuru recently.

The script skillfully wove together his professional and personal life. The play begins in the living room of the retired Raman and his wife Lokam.

They reminisce about the bygone years, bringing out the lesser known side of Raman — the fact that he spent very little time with his wife, her loneliness, his ego, their children, his love for music and their time in Calcutta.

This is when the play goes into flashback mode on the other half of the stage, detailing his life in Calcutta. While he worked as an officer of the Indian Financial Service during the day, he always looked forward to the evenings that he would spend doing experiments with light at the Indian Association for the Cultivation of Science (IACS). His association with K.S. Krishnan (Kitty), whom he mentored at the IACS, was very well portrayed. The politics that creeps into any institution, was also quite subtly brought out through the interactions between Pal and Meghnad Saha and between Raman and Austen.

The last scene again focuses on Raman and Lokam in their house, talking about various events in their lives. They joke about how he aimed for nothing less than the Nobel Prize, bringing out his highly ambitious side. They are also visited by Pal from the IACS, who remained a good friend over the years.

The stage sets were perfect, depicting the home on one half and the IACS on the other. Change of furniture between scenes was quick and efficient. A model of a spectroscope added greatly to the set representing the IACS. Lighting was very appropriate and music added to the ambience. However, the microphones did not seem to be able to amplify the speech of the actors sufficiently.

The delay between the first and second scenes (though perfectly understandable, since Raman needed to change costumes) was too long and interrupted the flow of the play.

Lokam and Raman would be in their late 70s / early 80s in the opening and closing scenes. But they appeared no more than 65. There was also not enough contrast in appearance between the young and older Raman (again understandable due to lack of time). Would it be appropriate to add a short scene (I can't think of what would fit in the flow) between the first two scenes, to give Raman enough time for costume and makeup change?

Kudos to the team, especially to Shashidhara Dongre for the excellently researched and well-written script and to H.S. Umesh for the engaging rendition of the playwright's vision of the scientist's life. All the actors portrayed their roles to perfection. The costumes were well thought out and the actors seemed very comfortable in them.

Overall, a very sleek production... Wishing the team many more repeat shows!

'Prof. K.S. Rangappa gave a new look to Manasagangothri, Muktagangothri'

Former VC of Mysore University & KSOU Prof. K.S. Rangappa and his wife Poornimadevi, who were felicitated at Senate Bhavan, Manasagangothri in city yesterday, are seen with Padma Shri Prof. Goverdhan Mehta, MP Padma Shri Dr. C.N. Manjunath, Prof. T.P. Singh, former UoM VC Prof. S.N. Hegde, Padma Shri Prof. Vinod Kumar Singh, KSOU VC Prof. Sharanappa V. Halse, Entrepreneur Dr. T. Rajamannar and others.

Mysuru, May 29 (MK&BS)- Prof. K.S. Rangappa, former Vice-Chancellor of University of Mysore (UoM) and Karnataka State Open University (KSOU), who celebrated his 70th birthday yesterday, was honoured in recognition of his remarkable contributions to the field of Science and Technology.

Prof. Rangappa and his wife Poornimadevi were felicitated by their well-wishers at a ceremony organised at Senate Bhavan, Manasagangothri here, in association with the Department of Studies in Chemistry, Department of Studies in Organic Chemistry, University of Mysore and Research Scholars.

Padma Shri Prof. Goverdhan Mehta, former Director of Indian Institute of Science (IISc), Bengaluru, in his address, credited Prof. Rangappa for changing the outlook of UoM's Manasagangothri campus and for giving a new dimension to KSOU's Muktagangothri campus. The greenery of Manasagangothri campus further enriched along with the addition of new buildings, all due to Rangappa, added Prof. Mehta.

"For an educational institution to progress, it requires leadership qualities like Prof. Rangappa. There are several institutions in the State that have to be revived. Prof. Rangappa, though turned 70, continues to remain active and has involved in various activities. The Science and Technology sector requires the service of Prof. Rangappa," opined Prof. Mehta.

Bangalore Rural MP Padma Shri Dr. C.N. Manjunath, who is also the former Director of Sri Jayadeva Institute of Cardiovascular Sciences and Research, was the chief guest.

Dr. Manjunath said, not all the renowned scientists and academicians shall be a good administrator. Similarly, not all the good administrators can be a better academician or researcher. But Prof. Rangappa is not just a scientist but also a better administrator, wielding a profound influence.

"While Gout is the reason for several bodily ailments as diagnosed in the field of medicine, it is the Govt., that is responsible for several lapses in the society. We should salute our work first, which elevates us to such a level that, there is no need to salute others, if we discharge our duty with honesty. Achievement doesn't come with a magic, as it requires intelligence, honesty, agility and hardwork," said Dr. Manjunath.

Following the success of Operation Sindoor, the exemplary courage displayed by our soldiers has been receiving appreciation from all quarters, discussing how the soldiers launched the attack with precision target. The role of scientists behind all these achievements cannot be ignored for they are involved in the making of artillery-like arms and ammunitions including missiles, said Dr. Manjunath.

For India to emerge as a developed country (Viksit Bharat) by the year 2047, the contributions of scientists is very much essential. The film stars alone cannot be branded as celebrities, the scientists who make vast contributions to the country's development and to uplift the society, also deserve to be known as celebrities, observed Dr. Manjunath, commemorating the contributions of scientists.

An anthology of poems titled 'Vismaya Jagattina Vignani Prof. K.S. Rangappa,' brought out by a editorial body headed by Prof. Shivarajappa, was released by Prof. T.P. Singh of All India Institute of Medical Sciences (AIIMS), New Delhi. Former UoM VC Prof. S.N. Hegde presided over the programme.

The National Academy of Sciences (Prayagraj) President Padma Shri Prof. Vinod Kumar Singh, KSOU VC Prof. Sharanappa V. Halse, Non-Executive Director of Sun Pharma Advanced Research Company Ltd., Dr. T. Rajamannar and Prof. K. Mantelingu were present on the occasion.

Customs Duty on cancer-treating drugs must be slashed

The contributions of Prof. K.S. Rangappa as a scientist is commendable, as the scientists have been playing a remarkable role in pharma sector, with the country ranked fourth in the export of drugs. The 60% of people in the country are dying of heart attack and cancer due to change in lifestyle. The country has taken a step towards the production of medicine to fight cancer. With some of these cancer-treating drugs imposed Customs Duty, efforts will be made to slash the Customs Duty, by holding discussion with the Health Minister.

—Dr. C.N. Manjunath, Bangalore Rural MP

Entrance test for Syndicate Members mooted

Dr. C.N. Manjunath made a relevant suggestion to screen the candidates to select Members for University Syndicate, on the lines of conducting entrance test for the admission of students, which may improve the quality of Varsities.

"The Varsities in the country are diminishing in stature, with the fall in quality of education year on year, calling for delegating certain powers related to decentralisation of system and selecting a team of delegates, in order to revive the Varsities. If the entrance test is conducted for the selection of Syndicate Members at least at a smaller level, the quality of Varsities may reform," asserted Dr. Manjunath.

WORD OF THE DAY

Fiasco

Pronunciation: fee-ASK-oh (noun).
Meaning: A fiasco is a complete failure or disaster.
Origin: English speakers picked up fiasco from the French, who in turn adopted it from the Italian phrase fare fiasco — literally, "to make a bottle." Just what prompted the development of the meaning "failure" from "bottle" has remained obscure. One guess is that when a Venetian glassblower would discover a flaw developing in a beautiful piece they were working on, they would turn it into an ordinary bottle to avoid having to destroy the object. The bottle would naturally represent a failure to the glassblower, whose would-be work of art was downgraded to everyday glassware. This theory, however, remains unsubstantiated.
Example: "Fyre's first iteration, in 2017, was widely seen as a massive failure. The luxe accommodations promised on the Bahamian island of Great Exuma turned out to be tents and instead of the promised gourmet fare, guests were served cold cheese sandwiches. After musical acts bailed at last minute, attendees were left stranded as organisers cancelled the festival entirely. The fiasco resulted in at least 2 documentaries."—Theresa Braine, The Sentinel & Enterprise (Fitchburg, Massachusetts), 24 Feb. 2025.

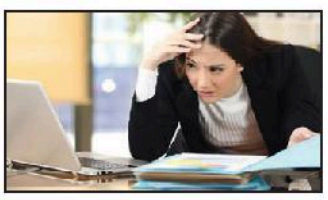
THE ODD WORD

Chatoyant

Light reflecting in a gemstone.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

All Greek To Me



Meaning: The phrase 'All Greek to me' means that you can't comprehend what is being written or said.
Origin: This phrase is common in many languages, but usually the 'incomprehensible language' differs per spoken language: In French this same phrase goes by: "It sounds Chinese to me."
Example: "My brothers were having a discussion about the latest football fiasco, but it was all Greek to me."
